

WINTER
2020

High School

WEEKLY CUES

YOU GOT THIS!

Theme

I Have Questions - Words: A Standalone Talk on Words

THINK ABOUT THIS:

- The words of others, especially those who are closest to us, impact us more than we realize. Think of your own experience in high school. I'm sure you can still remember the words, both positive and negative, of those closest to you. As a parent, your words impact and shape your teens lives in huge ways, and they have the potential to stick with them for a lifetime.

Week on Words

James 3:6-10 NLT

Pay attention to the power of your words.

REMEMBER THIS

May these words of my mouth
and this meditation of my heart
be pleasing in your sight, Lord,
my Rock and my Redeemer.
Psalm 19:14 NIV

WINTER
2020

High School

WEEKLY CUES

YOU GOT THIS!

Theme

I Have Questions - Words: A Standalone Talk on Words

THINK ABOUT THIS:

- The words of others, especially those who are closest to us, impact us more than we realize. Think of your own experience in high school. I'm sure you can still remember the words, both positive and negative, of those closest to you. As a parent, your words impact and shape your teens lives in huge ways, and they have the potential to stick with them for a lifetime.

Week on Words

James 3:6-10 NLT

Pay attention to the power of your words.

REMEMBER THIS

May these words of my mouth
and this meditation of my heart
be pleasing in your sight, Lord,
my Rock and my Redeemer.
Psalm 19:14 NIV

High School

DAILY CUES

Morning Time

Surprise your teen with extra encouragement this week! Before they wake up, cover their bedroom door in post-it notes filled with positive words and character traits you've seen demonstrated in their life. Ask other family members in your home to recognize and write words of encouragement as well.

Meal Time

During your meal time, ask your teen about their favorite memories as a kid. Scroll through some of your pictures on your phone or social media and take a trip down memory lane. Take time to tell stories behind the pictures, especially in their younger years. Focus on the positive moments, and try to encourage your teen as much as possible with the stories you share.

Their Time

The next time your teen brings up something that someone said to them that negatively affected them, ask them how the words made them feel. Ask them why it made them feel that way? Allow time for your teen to process, actively listening as they share. Encourage them to release those negative words and not allow them to identify them. Share positive words of affirmation to your teen to combat the negative ones.

Bed Time

Your words matter, even if your teen doesn't always show it. There are times when parents say hurtful words, either intentionally or unintentionally. Before your teen heads to bed, take time to apologize about something you said that negatively impacted them this week. There is no perfect parent, but it's how you respond afterwards that makes all the difference.

High School

DAILY CUES

Morning Time

Surprise your teen with extra encouragement this week! Before they wake up, cover their bedroom door in post-it notes filled with positive words and character traits you've seen demonstrated in their life. Ask other family members in your home to recognize and write words of encouragement as well.

Meal Time

During your meal time, ask your teen about their favorite memories as a kid. Scroll through some of your pictures on your phone or social media and take a trip down memory lane. Take time to tell stories behind the pictures, especially in their younger years. Focus on the positive moments, and try to encourage your teen as much as possible with the stories you share.

Their Time

The next time your teen brings up something that someone said to them that negatively affected them, ask them how the words made them feel. Ask them why it made them feel that way? Allow time for your teen to process, actively listening as they share. Encourage them to release those negative words and not allow them to identify them. Share positive words of affirmation to your teen to combat the negative ones.

Bed Time

Your words matter, even if your teen doesn't always show it. There are times when parents say hurtful words, either intentionally or unintentionally. Before your teen heads to bed, take time to apologize about something you said that negatively impacted them this week. There is no perfect parent, but it's how you respond afterwards that makes all the difference.